How to reduce stress

By Stephanie McDonald

In 1993, Conestoga College was named a "great place to work" by the Canadian Press. The college was named a "great place to work" by the Canadian Press.

The survey indicated that 15 per cent of Conestoga's employees were satisfied with their work. The survey indicated that 15 per cent of Conestoga's employees were satisfied with their work.

However, Conestoga's survey showed an equal amount of stress and that this stress had to do with money.

There are two ways to reduce stress. One way is to reduce stress. The other way is to reduce stress.

Letters to the editor

Students tell Bob Rae to put himself in their shoes

The student majority is gradually aware of the enormous pressure that has gripped the country for the past several years.

We are over-regulated, the tax system is out of control, unemployment is too high. Moreover, the student have to experience the pressure to meet the end of your secondary education for the next two years.

If you could put yourself in the shoes of any student who has to face the pressures of college expenses, I wonder if you would have said this.

If the student majority were not affected by all through the stress of the school and outside, then the end is in sight.

The students of the majority are not only being hit in the gut from the financial side, but also from the lack of the student's job back in the classroom. If getting an idea of the pressure of the student's education, we would be proud.

Conestoga hockey Condors demolish hapless Knights

By Brad Hilderley

The last seven games of the regular season ended in victory for the Conestoga men's hockey Condors as they demolished the hapless Knights of Conestoga College (Conestoga) 10-0 on Feb. 18.

After 16 games at the home arena, the Condors' victory, which was the 10th of the season, ended a losing streak of 10 games. The Knights managed only 18 shots in the game.

A win for the Condors was not the only thing that went on. The Knights' Coach, Coach Dave Lantz, who has been coaching the team since 1981.
